Subject: Wing Commander Lives!

I just wanted to pass along some commentary from the QA Prophecy and Translation teams that I received today.

"Wing Commander Prophecy is bad ass"
"It will be the best game released in its genre"

These words come from people who have been working on this product for months and have been killing themselves to get this product tested. Typically when the product is done, most people are completely burnt out or just have so little interest they are not very positive. These words meant quite a lot to me and I know they will mean a lot to the rest of the Origin Family.

I have to say I am extremely proud of the QA and Translations group for all that they have accomplished on this product. They have been awesome. I would like to thank WCP Dev team for all the support that they provided to QA and Translations and for providing such a great game!
